

In fairness to all in our society, the FCC should not allow a segment of powerful profiteers in the entertainment industry to control research and innovative process's in analog to digital conversions. Let them be work to protect themselves through proper safeguards in design. What they are trying to do is limit any competition by government decree. There are other legal means to stop piracy besides using political clout and government influence to stifle creative efforts in software, electrical, electronic design.